INTRODUCTION

1. We are an employer required by law to carry out Gender Pay Gap Reporting under the Equalities Act 2010 (Gender Pay Gap Information) Regulations 2017.
2. All companies with 250 or more employees now must publish their gender pay gap under new legislation that came into force in April 2017. Employers must publish the gap in pay between men and women on both a median basis (pay per hour based on the person in the middle of the distribution of pay) and a mean basis (average hourly salary). In addition, employers must show the distribution of gender by pay quartile – in other words splitting the workforce into four groups based on their pay and showing the proportion of men and women in each group. Employers also must show percentages of staff receiving bonuses by gender and the gender gap on bonuses.
3. The drb Ignite Multi Academy Trust welcomes and supports gender pay gap reporting.
4. This Report provides both the statutory disclosures needed, as well as further context around gender pay at the Trust.

CONTEXT

5. The gender pay gap is the difference between the hourly rate of pay of male employees and female employees (as set out in the regulations), expressed as a percentage of the hourly pay rate of the male employees. The gender pay gap is reported on both a mean (average) and median (mid-point on a distribution) basis.
6. Nationally, the gender pay gap is 17.3% (Office of National Statistics). Nationally, one of the main reasons for the gender pay gap is more men are likely to hold senior positions. This is not the case with the drb Ignite Multi Academy Trust which has a significantly higher proportion of women in the upper quartile of pay.
7. Differentials in gender pay across the workforce are different from ensuring equal pay. UK law has, since the 1970s, prohibited paying different amounts to men and women who are doing like work, work of equal value or work rated as equivalent unless there is a genuine material factor, for the difference.

Within the lowest quartile of pay grades, the Trust has an 96% female / 4% male mix. Moving to the highest quartile, this mix changes to 80% female / 20% male.

9. The overall gender pay gap as at 31st March 2019 is 13.12% on a median basis
